Good Templar Doings.

At the weekly meeting of the Good Templar lodge last Monday night three new candidates were initiated. Mr. T. H. Thornton presided in the absence of the Chief Templar, Lodge Deputy, Roland B. Baldwin reported that the quarterly returns and per capita tax had been forwarded to the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin.

The event of the meeting was the program rendered by Company A, Capt. Nixon.

The program which was of a musical, literary and dramatic nature was planned and directed by the lieutenants, the Misses Lelia Jero and Overa Pirman. Among the many musical features were the duets by Miss Vera Lind, Miss Lucy Gazley and Mr. Earl Jero and Miss Lelia Jero. Mr. Hugo Lind also rendered several solos with a good singing voice and a personality well adapted to the occasion. The witty dialogues recited by Messrs. Babcock and Jero were funny and entertaining.

The real pleasure of the evening were the tableaux, ten in number, portrayed by the Misses Overa and Alice Pirman.

Mr. Geo. T. Nixon recited a number of poems and read several original papers, one of which was written especially for the occasion by Mr. Martin Heinefeldt, editor of the Vesper Pioneer.

Special Meeting of Council.

The council held a special meeting on Tuesday evening, the object of which was to appoint supervisors for the first and sixth wards. Louis Schroeder was appointed for the first ward, E. F. WISCONSIN VISITED BY A BAD CYCLONE.

Sections of the southern part of the state were laid in waste on Saturday by a cyclone, which traveled across Rock County, leaving a path 40 rods wide and many miles in length. A dispatch from Janesville says: Nine persons are dead, many others are injured, and $1,000,000 in damage is the toll of the cyclone which swept over Wisconsin Saturday evening.

There were killed at Virginia, Ill. The fire families have been wiped out and houses and barns in Rock County have been laid low by the score. Telephone and telegraph wires are down and news is meager, but many pitiful incidents have already been reported. It is feared the cyclone's toll may be much greater than at first anticipated.

Orfordville, a village of less than 1,000 inhabitants, seven miles southwest of this city, seems to have been the storm center. The storm broke with a fury never before equaled in this part of the country. Farmers and villagers were caught entirely unawares. A high wind had prevailed during most of the afternoon. About 4 o'clock the clouds lowered and it became black as night. Warm temperature had prevailed during the day. Although the weather had been the subject of much comment, none was prepared for a cyclone. The storm gathered with such suddenness that few had time to seek their homes.

Farmers who were in the fields sheltered themselves as best they could and many arrived home to find their buildings destroyed and in some cases wives and children missing. The country surrounding Orfordville, as well as the greater part of Rock County, is extremely flat and almost devoid of trees. There was little protection from the wind. Tobacco sheds and frame structures were the worst sufferers. Scores of these were demolished.

The storm passed almost as quickly as it came up and left the country demoralized. Attempts to establish communication with neighboring cities were futile. The roads were almost impassable, but messengers were at once pressed into service and they made their way to Janesville and Beloit as swiftly as possible. Orfordville is equally distant from both of these cities and assistance from both towns was hurried to the stricken village.

It was extremely difficult to ascertain the exact damage and considerable time was lost in determining where help was most needed. Everywhere it was pitch dark and survivors could not give an accurate account of what had transpired.

Those who have returned from the scene of devastation tell of one groom who returned to his home to find it demolished and his bride dead in the ruins.

The loss caused by the tornado will run up into the millions, according to David Atwood, who made a trip into the country immediately after the storm passed Janesville. The loss to the tobacco crop alone will be more than $500,000.

Death of Albert Henke.

Albert Henke, who conducted a confectionery store on the west side, died on Monday after an illness of only four days, cause of death being pneumonia.

Deceased was 32 years of age and was born in the town of Sigel, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Henke, still reside. During the past twelve years he has made his home with his sister, Mrs. Albert Gilmeister, in this city during the greater part of the time. He was first employed as assistant in Church's drug store, but his health gave out after a time, when he returned to the farm and engaged in outdoor work and improved quite a bit. Later he returned to this city and started a candy store in the Lyon Block, where he was until his last illness.

Albert was a young man who was well liked by all who knew him and had many friends who will truly mourn his death.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 12:30 from the home, with services at one o'clock at the west side Lutheran church, Rev. Wm. Nommensen to conduct the services. Interment will be in the cemetery in the town of Sigel.

Gollmar's to Have Big Circus.

News of important changes in the management of the shows comprising the “circus trust” comes from Baraboo, the circus center. The Forbach & Sells show, owned by the Ringlings, goes out of existence as such, and during the winter season will be divided up among the Gollmar Brothers and small shows controlled by the Ringlings. In the future the Gollmar show will be classed as one of the Big Three, the others being the Ringling and the Barnum & Bailey shows. Gollmar's, which went into winter quarters last week, will be greatly enlarged and will exhibit only in larger cities. This season is said to have been the most profitable for the Ringlings since the famous quietest started out with weapons a generation ago. The Ringling show returned to Baraboo last week from the west, and the Barnum & Bailey is still touring the south.

Kenneth Smith returned on Tuesday from a visit in Beloit and Chicago. Geo. N. Wood passed thru City Point on Monday coming east on the Green Bay road. George says that one of the deer hunters from here held up two fingers as he went by, but George says he does not know whether they wanted him to stop and go swimming, whether there were just two drinks left in the bottom of the bottle, or if they meant that they had secured two deer.

Might be Well to Wait.

Next Tuesday, at the autumn meeting of the county board, the proposition of donating a site to the state university for an experimental farm will be brought up. As stated last week in this paper, Supervisor Robert Connor has secured options on suitable pieces of property that are favored by the university people, and there appears to be a general sentiment in favor of the county board buying the land and turning it over to the state board of regents. The regents have agreed to locate the farm on the land if it is donated. This puts it up to the county board. We believe if they have the interests of the county at heart they will make the needed appropriation and thus insure to Wood County farmers a chance to see here in their home county the methods of farming pursued by the agricultural college of the state university. —Marshfield News.

No doubt experimental farms are a good thing both for the county and state; they probably elevate us collectively and individually, but it is doubtful if the buying of a site for such a farm would be a good thing just at the present time. The county has just finished the building of an insane asylum which cost considerably more than it was expected it would and it might be well to let the tax payers recover from this before they are saddled with any more burdens.

We can get along for a few years yet without an experimental farm and think it would be advisable for the county board to practice rigid economy for a time.

The experimental farm will be for the benefit of the agricultural community of the county, but we very much doubt if there are a hundred farmers in the county who would vote in favor of the expenditure of the money at the present time.

“Out to Win” is a good motto, and it is one that should be in the mind of every resident of Grand Rapids. It is a motto, however, that cannot be made effective without the co-operation of every person in the city. The manufacturers of Victoria Flour are Out to Win, and they have already won the confidence of a great many people in this city and vicinity. The most effective way of winning is to spend your dollars at home with your home merchants and at the same time buying products that are manufactured right here in your home town. Victoria Flour is a home product. It is not a new thing, for it has been on the market for years. It is a good thing, as has been proven by the fact that those who use it once and give it a thorough test, continue to buy it and eventually become a steady customer. The next time you order flour try a sack of Victoria and feel that you are doing your share toward making a success of a home institution.

County Board in Session.

The county board met in annual session on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, with practically a full attendance. There were present two men from the state university to address the board on the subject of the experimental farm which the members from established there. However, no action was taken on the matter.

The board accepted an invitation to visit the new insane asylum near Marshfield and will make a trip up there to inspect the premises on Thursday.

The board then adjourned after attending to some routine business until 10 o'clock this morning.

Attorney Pors Shot.

Attorney E. C. Pors of Marshfield was the victim of an accident on Tuesday morning, the outcome of which is not known at this writing. The report is that Mr. Pors was taking some paper from the drawer of a desk in his office, when a revolver that was in there was discharged, the bullet striking Mr. Pors in the left side.

Mr. Pors was taken to the hospital where an examination showed that the bullet had perforated one lung and the liver. It is necessarily a serious wound and the outcome cannot be foretold.

Thomas Nelson and Minor Potter of Wautoma and Marons Olson and Henry Schrader of this city enrolled this week in the Grand Rapids Business College for a full commercial course.

WHY NOT HELP OUR HOMELESS NEIGHBORS

It would seem no more than right that Grand Rapids, as a city, should do something for the homeless people of Black River Falls. Several individuals of this city have sent sums of money there, but the amount is small compared with what might be raised in this city if the matter were taken hold of in a proper manner.

It is reported that one of our citizens interviewed some of the city fathers on the subject of making a donation and they thought that the city had no money to spare for this purpose, or any other, just at present.

Well, if we wait until there is a good bunch of money in the city treasury and some city has a disaster, both to happen at the same time, it is probable that we will be free from anything in the form of charity for some years to come.

Grand Rapids is located on a river the same as Black River Falls, and had the Wisconsin river a couple of more feet during the high water of last month, it is possible that we might be in something the same fix as our neighboring city. This fact should induce us to be charitable to our neighbors even if we are not naturally charitable.

The conditions at Black River Falls are unusual as may be gathered from the following extracts, which are taken from a recent appeal sent out by the relief committee:

“It will doubtless not be necessary to attempt a description of the flood, which is surely familiar to every reader of the newspapers. Suffice it to say that it completely wiped out about 80 per cent of the business portion of the city—totally destroyed 72 business buildings, including some warehouses, and greatly injured several others, with the total and partial loss of contents, averaging approximately 50 per cent and including in the destruction, in every instance, the real estate on which the buildings stood; literally engulfing and destroying twelve residences, with probably upwards of 50 per cent of their contents; totally destroying the furniture and other paraphernalia of 15 benevolent and secret societies, flooding 33 residences on the flats below the business section to a depth of from one to six feet, damaging goods and buildings to the extent of many thousands of dollars and making the buildings unfit for dwelling purposes for from one to three months; driving 18 nursing families in the business district permanently from their homes and destroying about 75 per cent of their household goods; flooding out 58 business institutions, with about 75 per cent of them not saving anything except their books and the balance saving but a minor portion of their goods.”

These are some but not all of the individual losses, taking practically all of the accumulated wealth of perhaps a major portion of the losers; but the city itself fares as badly as the most unfortunate of its citizens, and is left in a worse predicament than the average of them. Its water power plant has been so damaged that there is slight hope of procuring money with which to repair it in the very near future. Several streets have been destroyed beyond possibility of replacement, taking the sewers and water pipes. Water has been cut off from all of the Fourth ward, involving over a third of the population of the city and putting them in dry territory for an indefinite period. The whole of the city is in darkness on account of the loss of power and the destruction of a great portion of the electric wires. The city treasury is empty and the city is bonded to the limit of the assessed valuation before about 50 per cent of the valuation was destroyed by the flood. It is not likely that any tax on or will be paid the coming winter on the property that has been destroyed by the flood. Thus there will be neither money nor credit with which to restore the power or repair the electric light and water systems, which were sources of much revenue to the city. There is not even on hand a fraction of the price that will be required to provide protection from further flood damage. The school district has money with which to run the schools until the end of the year, but it is probable that they will then have to close.

“All contributions from those who feel able to give will be gladly received, all money to be sent to the state treasurer at Madison, and any supplies should be sent by freight to the committee at Black River Falls, Black River Falls, Wis., Oct. 31, 1911.

“A German Gentleman” Coming

—Frank Wimmer has won his greatest reputation on the American stage by his impersonation of the dignified, homely and natural German character. No buffoonery marks his interpretation of Leopold Schuler in the new domestic comedy, with music, “A German Gentleman” which will be seen here at Daly's Theatre, Thursday, Nov. 16th.

As Mr. Wimmer is the author of the play, the stage production can be said to have achieved the success through this author's years of experience in entering to the amusement of the public, for this is not his first effort along dramatic lines, as he has written a score of plays, and is today the youngest exponent of play-acting authority in the dramatic firmament, and his varied career embraces both star and leading roles over sixty dramas. “You can feel over the footlights,” said he, “of the intense interest in a homely, clean play with what actors term ‘heart interest.’ One or two wholesome, human situations are enough to carry a play, but in this new production of “A German Gentleman” there are two love stories running simultaneously, with never a conflicting moment with the real plot of the piece, for both clean comedy and especially good musical features are introduced to relieve the tense emotional scenes, and as both critics and audience have applauded my efforts, I am glad of its success.”

Hospital Should Have Aid.

The matter of how to support the local hospital and make it possible to keep it open so as to be available to the public is a matter that is troubling some of the ladies at the present time.

They feel that to allow the hospital to come out of existence at the present time would be a step backward, an admission of a lack of ability to keep up an institution that is as important to the community as any of the improvements of civilization. The ladies argue that the shortage which occurs at the hospital should be made up by the city as it is practically a charitable institution and the receivers of this charity are those who, under any circumstances, would have to be helped by the community in case of accident or sickness.

The city fathers admit the facts in the case, at least some of them do, but claim that the city can all it can attend to at the present time without assuming any more obligations, even the amount be small. So the matter stands at the present time. It is to be hoped that some solution of the problem will be forthcoming, as the hospital is a good thing for the city and should be supported in some manner.

From an Old Friend.

W. A. Dawes, who formerly made his home in this city where he was engaged in the shoe business, is still located at LaCrosse where he has been engaged in the manufacture of shoes. Mr. Dawes, in a recent letter, says that he is starting in to make shoes at wholesale. He has invented and patented several machines that are of great help in making shoes and he has no royalties to pay it is his intention to give his customers the benefit. He has his own heel trimmer and his own machine, also his own machine and sole runner under way. He states further that his sole pricking machine to help in making make shoes cheaper and better and that he can compete with any factory on same quality and give a discount of five per cent.

Government Statistics.

Wisconsin State Annual.
Not more than 10 per cent of the industrial wage workers of the United States earn over $3,000 a year. Half of them make less than $500 a year.

Hardly one woman in the industrial service $1,000 a year, only two per cent as much as $750 a year, and three-fourths of all women so employed make less than $500 a year.

Taking the more highly paid trades, it is found that more than half get less than $15 a week. Of the jewelers, 47 per cent, exceed that income; boot and shoe workers, 42 per cent; foundrymen and machinists, 32 per cent; papermakers, 18 per cent; furniture makers, 17 per cent; leather makers, 16 per cent. All but these percentages earn less than $2.50 a day, or less than $750 a year. And these are skilled trades.

These figures are from the new book, "Wages in the United States," by Prof. Scott Nearing, of the University of Pennsylvania. His curiosity was aroused by the conclusion reached by the government labor bureau, to the effect that $300 is the least amount for which an American wage-earner can maintain his efficiency under present cost of living.

The vast proportion of our wage earners are not getting the $300. They cannot, therefore, maintain their efficiency. To put it bluntly, they get less than enough to defray the cost of decent food, shelter, and clothing, and a reasonable amount of mental and physical diversion. And this is the richest country, of the richest age, in all the history of the world!

Doesn't it make you thoughtful?

True as Gospel.

The progressives in Wisconsin will not be likely to raise the cry of no state tax this year as a battle cry. They are more likely to try to hide it in the great state of there can be found a cavern dark enough to hide the monstrous figures. In the aggregate the state tax about to be levied will amount to the enormous sum of $5,557,000, of which St. Croix county will have to pay more than $57,000. During the last few years the state's resources have been vastly increased. The ad valorem taxation of railroads, the inheritance tax and the multiplication of fees and incomes in every field have added vast funds to the income of the state with all this the state tax is larger than ever before. An attempt is being made to hold the educational institutions, especially the University, responsible, but the amount raised, $4,515,200, almost the largest in the history of the state. This increase in the state tax does not mean the extravagance of the last few legislatures. The multiplication of commissions, the use of red tape and the army of public officials doing private political work, will cause the local tax to be enormously increased. The acts of the last few legislatures have been a series of attacks on property, ostensibly that of the rich, but in nearly every particular the burden has fallen upon the one of small holding, the man with the farm, the stock of goods or the home. The democratic press of Wisconsin never had a better opportunity to inform the public than it has now. If it does not wake up to the situation the democratic editors of Wisconsin need never dread the sound of Gabriel's trumpet. They would sleep right on.—Hudson True Republican.

What Kind?

The following article from La Follette's Weekly is so apt and forcible that we take the liberty to print it.

When President Taft said: "I love the judges, I love the counts; they are my ideal on earth and typify what we shall meet afterward in heaven under a just God," did he have in mind the Supreme Court of the United States that decided the Sherman Anti-trust law to mean every restraint of trade, or did he have in mind the Supreme Court of the United States that decided the Sherman law to mean only those restraints that the judges may regard as reasonable? Did he have in mind a court like the federal court presided over by Judge Sanborn which decides that by state judges practically no power to regulate railroad rates; or a federal court like the one presided over by Judge Warrington which decides quite the opposite? When the federal courts exhibit such remarkable differences of opinion as to what constitutes justice, what kind of courts does President Taft have in mind when he says "they typify what we shall afterward meet in heaven under a just God?"

VESPER

(From the State Center.)

A man from Arpin had a narrow escape at the depot while trying to get aboard a moving train. Falling in the first attempt he tried again with the result that he was thrown under the train and fortunately landed between the depot platform and the moving wheels.

NEKOOSA

(From the Times)

Charles Jacobs, a well known farmer of the town of Port Edwards, about six miles west of Nekoosa, was driving home last night when his team ran away, throwing him to the ground and breaking one of his arms. The team ran to home and we understand Mr. Jacobs was later found by a passer-by on the roadside, so badly injured he could not help himself. He was brought to Nekoosa, the services of a physician secured, his arm attended to and he is now resting comparatively easy.

Walter, the twenty year old son of Mr. and Mrs. August Bulgren of the town of New Rome, met with a very bad accident last Friday by catching his hand in a corn shredder. ## Patient Commits Suicide.

Craved by a hallucination peculiar to those derailed in mind, Frank Getzinger, an inmate of the Wood County Asylum, unobserved by those in attendance, deliberately threw himself in the firehole under the boiler Monday and was so badly burned that death resulted the following day. He was 23 years of age and a son of Anton Getzinger of Vesper who with other members of the family were present at the funeral which took place Thursday in this city from St. John's Catholic church, Rev. Fr. Venz saying high mass.

The accident is a most deplorable feature connected with institutions of this kind and in this instance blameless to the charges. The unfortunate at the time was employed working near the furnace room, the exercise being deemed a curative for his ailment as it diverted his mind from the cause of his insanity and built him up physically. While thus engaged he was suddenly seized with the idea of self-extermination and when no one was looking dove head first into the firehole. He was instantly rescued but too late as he was terribly burned but stood the awful ordeal without a shriek or a complaint. Dr. Doeze, the asylum physician, was called and did everything possible to alleviate his suffering but all to no purpose as the nature of his injuries were beyond human help. It would seem from the evidence in the case that Superintendent Gilson or his assistants are not in any way accountable for the fact, more especially when guarded freedom and outdoor exercise is considered the greatest of cures for insanity. It was only a step from where the man was working to the firehole and when none were looking he took the fatal plunge.—Marshfield Herald.

The Green Bay & Western has been up to considerable expense in handling its trains since the Hatfield dam broke on the Black River. All trains, both freight and passenger, have been sent around by Merrillan, Marshfield and Grand Rapids, owing to the washing out of some 800 feet of track near Hatfield. It is said the Green Bay will lose $50,000 owing to the extra expense of operation, each freight car from Merrillan to Marshfield costing some $12.50. The loss to the passenger department is also considerable.

Nash Grocery Co. have received a carload of choice apples. Among the lot are Greenings, Northern Spys, Baldwins and Golden Russets. The prices are very reasonable. Order your supply now before the price advances.

EVERYBODY SHOULD KNOW MUSHROOMS.

But very few do. The old fashioned method of finding out whether a certain brand of fungi are edible or not seems to be going out of style. The way our forefathers used to do was to go out and gather a mess of likely looking plants and cook them up and eat them. If you lived they were mushrooms and if they killed you they were toadstools. Very simple method and practically infallible. But the scheme seems to have fallen into disuse, as it is very seldom now that a case of poisoning from this source is heard of. A writer in the Chilton Times has the following to say about mushrooms:

"It is really too bad that so many mushrooms must decay each season just because people know so little about them. If they had once learned to know that succulent, nutritious and truly delicious article of food in its manifold varieties, that it can be gathered without the least danger by any person, using common sense, and can be prepared for the table so easily and quickly in many different ways; canned or dried for use in winter, few mushrooms would be allowed to decay or be destroyed by the frosts of winter. I don't believe in resting with a silver spoon or other similar tests. Such tests are simply antiquated delusions and may be very harmful."

But the reader may ask how to distinguish the good article from the poisonous. It is as easy as learning anything else. Find a mushroom friend, take a stroll with him. Learn to know two or three edible kinds the first time. Go out again, learn to know more. Mark the characteristics of each, their color, form, etc., and in a short time you will go alone and your outing will be interesting as well as profitable. A good book on mushrooms will be an additional help to you, in fact, you will find so many interesting things in the mushroom line, so many questions to ask, that you will want an answer from them from one who speaks authoritatively. You will then learn that no test, as the one mentioned above, can be relied upon. You will pick up and eat only what you know."

Finger Removed.

Ellsworth Morgstroyd had a finger removed from his hand at the joining last Saturday evening. Drs. Waters of Grand Rapids and Whitehouse, our local doctor, performed the operation. He had been suffering from a felon for some time past and altho it was lanced there was no thought advisable to remove the offending member before the swelling would go further. His hand is getting along very good and it is hoped no further trouble will be had.—Vesper Pioneer.

ERUPTION COVERED BODY

"Three years ago this winter I had a breaking out that covered my whole body. It itched so it seemed as if I should go crazy. It first came out in little pimples on my back and spread til it covered my whole body and thrust down to my knees, also my arms down to my elbows. Where I scratched it made sores, and the terrible itching and burning kept me from sleeping. I tried several remedies, but all to no purpose. Then I considered to try the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, also the Resolvent, for about four months, and they completely cured me of eczema. I have had no return of the disease since. I never had a good night's rest after this skin eruption first broke out till I commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I had only used them a few days before I could see they were beginning to heal, and the terrible itching was gone."

"These that lived in the house at the time know how I suffered, and how the Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me. I never took a bath without using the Cuticura Soap, and I do not believe there are better reme-

Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed)

Urgent Necessity.

A distinguished theologian was invited to make an address before a Sunday school. The divine spoke for over an hour, and his remarks were of too deep a character for the average Sunday school children. At the conclusion, the superintendent, according to custom, requested some one in the school to name an appropriate hymn to sing.

"Sing 'Revive Us Again,' shouted a boy in the rear of the room."

Curative Treatment.

In his reading lesson Bobby had come to the word "punishment," and it was too long and hard for him.
After puzzling awhile he asked the teacher what the word was.
"Castor oil," she answered. "What does your mother give you when you have been an unusually naughty boy?"
"Castor oil!" he exclaimed, sure that he had guessed it—"Youth's Companion."

ADVENTURES of the WORLD'S GREATEST DETECTIVES

By George Barton

The Blue Bordered Bank Notes

How a curious stage coach robbery was solved by Captain James Nish of the Edinburgh Police Force.

THIS is a story of the romantic days of the stage coach. It tells how the shrewdest of a quiet, modest Scotch detective solved the mystery of one of the strangest robberies in history, and succeeded eventually in landing a trio of smart thieves behind the thick walls of an Edinburgh prison.

At the time Queen Victoria occupied the British throne the Prince Regent coach, running between Glasgow and Edinburgh, was one of the most popular means of transportation in Scotland. These men proposed making the journey found it necessary to look their passage money days in advance.
Besides the persons who occupied places on the inside and outside of the coach, the two also carried mail and express packages.

One morning a box, containing notes and gold to the value of $30,000, was deposited with the driver of the coach with instructions to guard it very carefully. It was from the Commercial Bank of Glasgow to the main headquarters of that institution in Edinburgh. The driver, after receipting for the valuable package, which was in reality a box, put it in the boot of the coach. This boot, so-called, was a large wooden enclosure on the side of the vehicle, used for the purpose of carrying valuables of all sorts.
The driver locked this box and, to make assurance doubly sure, put the key in his pocket.

On arriving in Edinburgh the coachman who had driven the last stage of the journey, and had received the key from his predecessor, alighted and opened the boot. The tin box was there, but it had been rifled. Every penny of the paper money and the gold had been abstracted from its place.

The two drivers had been with the company for a number of years and no one suspected them of having anything to do with the theft. Under the circumstances, it was a mystery not to be solved by ordinary methods.
It was soon determined that the money must have been stolen from the inside of the coach, for it was found that the boot had been cut away with a knife. An opening had been made into it by piercing the woodwork with a brace and bit. After that a section of the side had been cut out by means of a saw, and money was taken from the tin box from the inside of the coach. The method was quite apparent. But who were the culprits?

An investigation at the booking office brought forth the information that all of the seats for that day had been sold in Glasgow. Four of these were issued in the name of a Mrs.
Johnson and two of them in the name of a Mrs. Gordon. Yet, in spite of the fact that the seats had been sold a day in advance, the coach had started on its journey without any inside passengers whatever. A few miles outside of Glasgow the coach was halted and a man and a woman were taken out. They were taken to within three miles of a place called Aldrie, where they alighted. There were several outside passengers, and one of these, with a courtesy unusual in that part of the country, had alighted from his seat and jumped down to the ground to help the lady and gentleman out of the coach.

Captain James Nish at that time was connected with the police department of Edinburgh. He was a shrewd Scotchman who said little and thought much. He had earned a reputation as a careful, painstaking officer. He possessed also a trait that is not supposed to be common with his countrymen—a sense of humor.

So Captain Nish was put in charge of the Prince Regent coach case. He first made a careful investigation of the vehicle. He went about his work systematically. He found the kind of saw that must have been used in making the hole between the coach prop-and the boot. After that he made a declaration:

"This job was not done by a carpenter."

"Don't you think so?" asked an officer of the company.

"No; I am certain of it. Moreover, I am satisfied that it was not even done by a mechanic."

"Why?"

"Because it has been bungled. It is the work of a man who has not been accustomed to handling tools."

After that he obtained a full description of the missing notes. To his great joy he found that they had one characteristic that made them different from most of the notes that were in circulation at that time.

They had blue borders.

So Captain Nish went from one end of Scotland to the other looking for commercial bank notes with blue borders. In this task he was assisted by a number of other officers. For quite a while their labors were without result. It was not until the month of the notes in the country of thistles were without blue borders.

But Captain Nish was a man of extraordinary patience. Most Scotchmen are. He haunted the bar-rooms of the university city and visited the resorts where crooks are wont to congregate. He did not confine his investigations to the underworld. He happened to get married it might be just the thing for the old woman."

That very night Captain Nish visited the lodgings of the old soldier.
He made a careful examination of the discarded dress and was gratified to discover that it had on it the marks of a Glasgow dry goods merchant. The first train out the next morning carried Nish to Glasgow. He found the dry goods merchant without any difficulty and asked him if he recalled selling a dress of that description.
The merchant said that he had sold several, but the last transaction that he remembered was with a George Gilchrist, who was the owner of a livery stable in that city. The detective went immediately to Gilchrist's place.
He took several officers with him. On the way he mapped out his plan of campaign. Gilchrist was in his office.

"My name is Nish," said the officer,
"and I came here on business connected with the police."

"What is it?" asked the liveryman, languidly. "A stolen horse?"

"No, sir," retorted the detective, sternly. "It is stolen bank notes."

"A, that is more interesting."

"Much more so," was the rejoinder.
"It concerns the blue bordered bank notes that you stole from the Prince Regent coach?"

Gilchrist turned all colors and trembled, but he defied the soft impeachment.

"That won't go," cried Nish; "you're my prisoner."

In the meantime he had his officers make a careful search of the house and as a result of that they found money concealed in bureau drawers and other receptacles. When he was confronted with the evidence of his crime Gilchrist made a complete confession, and the story was as interesting as it was unusual.

Gilchrist admitted that he was the moving spirit in the robbery. The sight of the coach passing on its way between the two cities and filled always with valuables had aroused his cupidity. He knew that on this particular journey the boot of the coach would contain the commercial bank notes with the blue borders. There were only five and twenty-pound notes respectively, and he felt that he would have no trouble in putting them into circulation. Accordingly he selected months of its life, could only be guessed at, but the investigators estimated that 1,500 miles would be well within the possibilities.

Five lapwings were marked in their nest in the northeast of Scotland. Four were shot in Ireland, in four different counties, and the fifth was found in southern Portugal. A guillemot was marked as a newly hatched chick on the Aberdeenshire cliffs. It was shot eighteen weeks later, north of Goten-burg, Sweden. A wide-winged duckling, marked in the nest on Loch Brora, Scotland, was taken in a duck decoy in Province Groningen, northeastern Holland, three months later.

The investigation possibly will add little to the knowledge of ornithologists, but it will present a great collection of authentic records showing how quickly the fledgling tests its young strength in overseas flights.

Tragedy Due to Poverty.
A sad tragedy through poverty was witnessed recently by a number of people in Paris. A poorly dressed man, leading a girl of five years by the hand, walked slowly to the center of a bridge. He then picked the child up and kissed her, with the tears rolling down his face, and threw her over the parapet into the river. Before anyone could stop him he leaped over the parapet and fell into the water near her. Both were carried away by the current, and the bodies were not recovered. Inquiries revealed that the child was his daughter, and that the tragedy was the result of unemployment.

In the First of Empires

Now that the cutting down of China's population by about 100,000, this summer has placed the British empire easily first in the world in area and the number of its inhabitants. It is interesting to note a few of the other "biggest-in-the-world" points of distinction which Britons can claim for their vast realm. Its bigness is many-sided.

The British empire has the largest city in the world—London. It includes the most populous country—India. It contains the greatest wealth unassured under any one flag. It has the largest navy and is foremost in merchant shipping. It has the first port of the world—London.

The British empire divides, with the United States, the possession of the largest lake in the world—Superior. It includes the deepest river, the Saguenay, though not the largest.
It is entitled to a half interest in the highest mountain of the earth—Mr.
Everest, in the Himalayas.

The British empire has the greatest of the world's gold fields—the Witwatersrand in the Transvaal, South Africa. The largest ship in the world sails under the British flag.
The foreign commerce of the empire is far in excess of the international trade of any other country.

Much the largest island in the world—Australia—is not too big to be considered an island—it is a part of the British empire. It has the greatest fur preserves in the Canadian northwest. No other nation has so much capital invested or loaned in foreign countries, and none derives so large an income from that source.

The British empire leads all other countries in cotton manufactures, though not in the production of cotton. It possesses more sheep than any rival and more cattle, likewise.
If the domesticated buffaloes of India are included. It has most of the elephants used in the service of man, kind, and all other countries are engaged in the production of ostriches and in the feather crop obtained from those giant birds.

No other empire or state in the world contains as many large cities as the British empire. It is not first, however, in cities of 1,000,000 population or more. The annual growth of the same immense empire in population is greater than the increase in any other country.

The British empire is first among the nations in fisheries and foremost in shipbuilding. The total tonnage of its ports is without a parallel in any other realm.

It is nearly certain that the British empire grows more rice than any other country. It has an undisputed but evil supremacy in the production of opium. There is no other country or empire which is in the same class in the annual product of its diamond mines.

The British empire divides with the United States the ownership of the greatest falls in the world, at Niagara, and shares with this country the most useful artificial waterway of the world—the ship canals at Suez, St. Marie.

But the other side of the account is interesting, likewise. Vast as the British empire is it fails to take first place in many things which might be expected to fall to so enormous an aggregation of countries, in different parts of the world.

It is not the largest bank, for instance, or the grandest university. It is not first in the production of any grain except, perhaps, rice. Nor does it lead the world in the manufacture of iron and steel, or in railroads. The fastest-growing city is not under the British flag, nor is the highest building or the largest cathedral.

There are many other points in which one or more smaller countries surpass the greatest of empires. But there is quite enough under the flag of Britain to give point to Mark Twain's witicism—"The English are contented with Bible. 'Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth.'"

Certainly Not.

"Would you like to live in a town like Austin?" "No—not by a dam site."
